

Have a safe, silent cyber-Diwali this year!

Webdunia lets you enjoy fireworks, perform puja online

Special Correspondent

BANGALORE: Finally, the lesson seems to have sunk into lay Indians: Louder is not better when it comes to celebrating the Festival of Lights. The courts moved the government to put in place strict noise and safety standards — and tightened purses this year seem to have played their part in muting both inclination and ability to 'burn' money in costly, noisy fireworks.

That is not to say we can't enjoy a complete Diwali experience — complete with colourful fireworks and lighted lamps — thanks to improved Internet technology.

Webdunia, India's first multilingual portal has created a special Diwali page called 'Online Aatishbaazi' (fireworks) where one can use the mouse to ignite a 'rassi' (or thread bound) bomb, let off rockets, or set of an 'anaar' or 'flower pot.' For those who want to perform a very realistic puja online, Webdunia has created a Lakshmi Puja site where you can perform 'aarti,' make an offering of flowers or fruits — all with keyboard and mouse, to the background of a melodious bhajan. The primary Hindi page to access these is <http://www.hindi.webdunia.com/index.htm> but one can find links to do this in any of 11 other Indian languages. The Lakshmi puja application can also be accessed by mobile phone owners who have a GPRS connection to the Web, by going to <http://wap.webdunia.com/>.

These language sites also have a selection of e-greetings you can use — but if your friends appreciate a bit of culture with the Diwali message, the best place to look is the IndiaVideo portal, an ambitious Web encyclopedia on Indian culture, created by the Thiruvananthapuram-based Invis Multimedia, in association with UNESCO.

You will find short video clips of all important Indian dance forms, many by leading artists, which you can paste into your e-greetings. Invis Managing Director M.R. Hari says the site has been extremely popular since it went live last year, attracting about 2,000 downloads every day — and Google has rated it at page rank 6 among websites monitored by it. deciding to standardise their e-governance applications under BOSS. For lay users, who want to give it a try, the software can be downloaded from <http://www.bosslinux.in/> — but CDAC also promises to send it on a DVD to anyone who writes in to or calls at any of its CDAC-BOSS support centres in Kolkata, Bangalore, Mohali, New Delhi, Noida, Thiruvananthapuram, Pune, Hyderabad and Mumbai. Addresses can be found at the website.

On DVD drive
To help those who don't want to disturb their existing system, while giving BOSS a tryout, it can also be run from the DVD drive without hard disk installation. Give it a try — it is not perfect; like so many Linux realisations, it might not work with every peripheral you have, at first shot; but it is the most meaningful product to come out of the Indian software industry in decades — and let's recognise it, this is work that a government department had to do.

It may be one small step for CDAC's Chennai team; it might turn out to be a giant leap for desi PC users — if enough Indians embrace it.

Finally, we have something we can call India's own PC Operating System: The Chennai unit of the Centre for Development of Advanced Computing (CDAC), led by its Director, M.R. Rajagopal, has put together BOSS or Bharat Operating System Solutions, an Open Source distribution of what is called GNU/Linux. The desktop version no 3.0 recently released supports 18 Indian languages and includes a host of features to enhance its utility: a 3-D desktop; support for Bluetooth wireless devices; a document reader for the PDF format and application tools in all Indian languages.

It is also compatible with Bharateeya OS, the Office tool set for Indian languages that CDAC brought out a couple of years ago to 'Indianise' the OpenOffice suite.

Four States — Tamil Nadu, Kerala, Bihar and Chhattisgarh — have been proactive in
